

College admissions essay editing service announces essay contest for $1,000 prize

Contributed by Editor
Friday, 06 November 2009
Last Updated Saturday, 07 November 2009

LAWRENCEVILLE, NJ – EssayEdge, a leading college application essay editing service, has announced that it is launching its Tell Your Story College Admissions Essay Contest, which will award a grand prize of $1,000. The contest will run through Dec. 1.

“With college application season in full swing, we want to offer an opportunity for students to compete for scholarship funds with their college application essays,” said Scott Johns, manager of consumer business at EssayEdge.com. “The number of college applicants is on the rise—so the essay is more important than ever in helping you stand out in front of the admissions committee.”

Students interested in competing in the essay contest should fill out the official entry form during the contest period on EssayEdge.com and submit essays between 250 and 1,000 words in length.

Entrants must be at least 13 years old and residents of the United States. The prize winner will be selected on or about Dec. 15 from among all valid entries received.

All essays will be judged by professional EssayEdge editors who will use the following criteria to evaluate the entries: proper grammar, spelling, and usage; topicality and organization; word choice, style, and eloquence; creativity and originality; and overall effectiveness.

For more information and complete official rules for the Tell Your Story College Admissions Essay Contest, and to get help to make your admissions essay shine, visit www.Essayedge.com .